A History Of Spaces: Cartographic Reason, Mapping And The Geo-Coded World (Frontiers Of Human Geography)

Synopsis

This book provides an essential insight into the practices and ideas of maps and map-making. It draws on a wide range of social theorists, and theorists of maps and cartography, to show how maps and map-making have shaped the spaces in which we live. Going beyond the focus of traditional cartography, the book draws on examples of the use of maps from the sixteenth century to the present, including their role in projects of the national and colonial state, emergent capitalism and the planetary consciousness of the natural sciences. It also considers the use of maps for military purposes, maps that have coded modern conceptions of health, disease and social character, and maps of the transparent human body and the transparent earth.

Customer Reviews

I ordered this for a grad course. It was required reading, but I ended up loving it. I also like the quality of the book cover. It held up against the rough and tumble of being lugged around in my bag and my vicious highlighter. Good price, good product, and good shipping. What more does a buyer want?
